FORTY YEARS of COMPASSIONATE CARE

40 Years, Thanks to You

When Hospice of Napa Valley quietly began 40 years ago, we cared for patients with cancer, heart failure and other life-limiting illnesses with great compassion and care, but without the benefit of the sophisticated equipment and medicine commonly used today.

While the compassion is constant, huge advances have been made in earlier diagnoses, targeted treatments, and therapies for illnesses that offer better outcomes and quality of life.

But that's only part of the equation when it comes to the care we've provided.

Advances make us better, but you make us possible.

As a nonprofit, we are a community service that grows and thrives through the generosity of individuals and organizations.

So as other illnesses, such as Alzheimer's, have increased disproportionately over the years, you've made it possible for us to respond accordingly with new programs and services, such as our Day Program, Palliative Care Services, and Alzheimer's Resource Center to meet the specific needs in our community.

The result? Last year alone, we touched more than 2,500 lives through patient care, caregiver support, day programs, community support groups and bereavement services.

And that's thanks in large part to you. Because every dollar donated has allowed us to help more people in our community in more ways, regardless of their ability to pay. And so on our 40th anniversary, we—and the thousands of individuals and their families we've served over the years—thank you.

1979 Launch of Hospice of Napa Valley

Hospice of Napa Valley opens at St. Helena Hospital, the first hospice program in Napa County.

"Of the greatest importance (in hospice care) is the idea of making these times the most meaningful and making the relationships the strongest."

—Nianne Neergaard, director of St. Helena Hospital Home Health Services in 1979

1981

Hospice of Napa Valley adds a bereavement program to provide support to the family members of patients.

1992

I've had to many changes in my life it feels like fall all year long. It starts out beautiful then it ends ugly. My dad dying, my grandma dying, My brother moving. stuff happens for a reason but if I could I would change it.

Hospice of Napa Valley begins offering grief support groups for youth through the Napa Valley Unified School District.

1995

Hospice of Napa Valley becomes a joint venture between St. Helena Hospital and Queen of the Valley Hospital, and moves headquarters to Napa.

1997

Hospice of Napa Valley becomes its own independent 501(c)3 nonprofit corporation, allowing the organization to remain a true community hospice while still being able to draw on the strength and stability of St. Helena Hospital and Queen of the Valley Hospital.

1998

Volunteers begin receiving bilingual/bicultural training, and Hospice of Napa Valley begins offering bilingual counseling services and grief support groups to Spanish-speaking patients and their families.

1998/1999 Launch of Adult Day Health Services

Hospice of Napa Valley launches Adult Day Health Services and becomes Napa County's designated Alzheimer's Day Care Resource Center. Services offer the frail elderly, younger disabled and those with Alzheimer's Disease and dementia dignity, connection and independence; keep them active and engaged; help avoid the ER and hospital; and prevent premature placement in a skilled nursing home. The program also provides much-needed respite to the families of participants.

"We opened our doors in 1998 with one participant. Today, we serve 155 participants each week, ages 23-90, and remain Napa County's one and only Adult Day Health Care."

— Celina Regalia, the Day Program's first employee and now Executive Director of Collabria Care

2001

Hospice of Napa Valley is awarded both the American Hospital Association's Circle of Life Award: Celebrating Innovation in End-of-Life Care and the Stanford Geriatric Education Center's Gwen Yeo Award.

2003

Thanks to supporters of a capital campaign and significant contributions from the Napa County Board of Supervisors, Gasser Foundation and Napa Valley Vintners Association, Hospice of Napa Valley breaks ground on a new, larger home for its growing continuum of programs.

"This moment commemorates the culmination of several years of planning to make the dream of a permanent home a reality for our organization. This beautiful and functional building will strengthen us and allow us to continue to grow to meet the needs of our community."

— Sarah Gorodezky, Hospice of Napa Valley
Executive Director, 1997–2005

2005

Hospice of Napa Valley moves into its new building on South Jefferson. The new 18,500 square-foot facility allows the agency to expand hospice services, increase the availability of adult day services, and improve access to a continuum of community-based long term care and palliative services.

Hospice of Napa Valley hosts its first annual golf tournament.

"The work that Hospice does in the Valley is something that no one can truly understand until you experience it for yourself. To help guarantee that hospice will be here for all of us, is something that I, and my family, want to ensure. We all believe in our hearts that hospice was the greatest gift that Joan, my wife, had during her final memories. They are all angels."

— Koerner Rombauer, benefactor

The first annual gala is held. Over the years, proceeds have supported the capital campaign, as well as costs of unreimbursed services such as grief counseling, caregiving support, charity care, and community programs.

“Our family grew up in this community and has seen firsthand the value of Collabria Care’s good work. By caring for patients and families at a most vulnerable time of their lives, those who do the daily work seem to wrap their arms around the whole community.”

— Bob and Tony Torres, co-chairs of the 2018 annual gala

2008

Hospice of Napa Valley is renamed Napa Valley Hospice & Adult Day Services to better represent its growing range of services.

2011 Bridging the Gap

Transitions Palliative Care is launched to support those suffering from serious illness by providing an extra layer of support. A palliative care nurse works closely with the patient’s doctors to manage their symptoms, prevent or relieve suffering and support the best possible life for patients and their families. The program has served nearly 750 patients and their families since its inception.

2012

The Legacy Society is launched to recognize individuals who have designated Napa Valley Hospice & Adult Day Services as a beneficiary in their estate plans.

2014

Transitions Palliative Care services are made available to residents of the Veterans Home of Yountville to help those vets coping with advanced serious illness maintain their independence and quality of life.

2015

Collabria Care’s volunteer program is one of approximately 200 nonprofit organizations in the U.S. designated as a “Point of Light Service Enterprise.” This status recognizes Collabria Care for making volunteers central to its operation across all levels of its work—which it has done since its founding.

2016

Napa Valley Hospice & Adult Day Services is renamed Collabria Care–Collabria Hospice.

“The name Napa Valley Hospice & Adult Day Services no longer described the continuum of care and resources we provide, nor positioned our organization to meet the future needs of our community. Now we are ready to meet those needs and have the structure and capacity to accommodate future needs with the same compassion, dignity, and connection as always.”

Collabria Care President & CEO,
2009–2018

2017 Supporting Senior Independence

Collabria Care launches the UpValley Village to help older UpValley residents who wish to remain in their homes do so for as long as possible with help on in-home projects, transportation, referrals to professional service providers, and invitations to social and educational programs and activities.

Collabria Care, in conjunction with the County of Napa, launches the free Senior Information & Assistance (I&A) service, which provides Napa County residents over the age of 60 with information and referrals to resources they need to maintain their independence and quality of life.

2018 Ready for the Future

Collabria Care integrates with St. Joseph Home Care Network.

“By partnering with another trusted nonprofit organization, we can make our services to this community stronger and better able to address the many challenges in healthcare today. We’ll be able to provide individuals and their families facing the changes that accompany aging with seamless, specialized care to meet those, today and for years to come.”

— Steve Silva, Collabria Care Board Chair, 2008 – 2018
